

The day has chosen to rest
Yvette J. Green

The sun met me
as the moment was dying.
We shared stories
of love and loss,
peace and chaos.
She wrapped herself
in lilac and orange quilts
and went to sleep in my soul.

A native of Nashville, Tennessee, Yvette J. Green has lived in the Maryland suburbs of Washington, D.C. for the last nineteen years. Two sons, eleven and sixteen, make her a proud mother. She complete her MA in English at the University of Maryland, College Park. She has had a short memoir published in the Seasons of Our Lives-Winter: Stories from WomensMemoirs.com. Her first poems have been published in Indolent Books: What Rough Beast and are forthcoming in two more publications.
